I discover that there are so many good stories out there.
I pick an anime that I like the most. Then I create my own by redrawing its characters' looks while copying its' story.
I post my work on the internet and it gains popularity very suddenly. Everyone seems to think that these are my original ideas.

I...

should stop plagiarizing and go to art school to learn

continue to create my works by copying others' stories

I think of a bunch of abstract ideas.
But still, I fail to come up with good stories. I realize that I can't achieve my goal by myself.

I...

decide to apply to art school to learn

want to give up on my dream